

HANSON WASN'T SO IF ENOUGH TO CATCH THIEF

He Had Seen Girl Brutally
Beaten and Chased
Her Assailant.

POLICEMAN GOT MAN.

Prisoner's Features Sadly Fres-
coed When in Court This Morning.

Deputy Commissioner Hanson attended the measuring and photographing of Alfie Finnichiro, the youth he assisted in capturing last night after he had attacked two young women whom he attempted to rob. The young women are Dorothy and Nelly Lambourn, nineteen and seventeen years old, of No. 110 East Twenty-seventh street, both stenographers. They appeared in Yorkville Court after the young highwayman had been registered in the Roanoke Gallery.

They were taken by their mother to an advertising agency at Forty-sixth street and Sixth avenue, they say. The younger girl carried a purse containing the change of a $20 bill when she left the advertising agency and the pair walked down Sixth avenue toward Forty-second street.

In front of the Hippodrome Finnichiro stopped up behind them and said: "It's a nice evening, girls."

Miss Nelly Lambourn turned around quickly and slapped his face, saying: "How dare you!"

The youth fell back for a moment and then went on. Just beyond Forty-third street Finnichiro sprang at the younger girl and endeavored to trip her, snatching at the purse that dangled from a chain. She had a firm grip on the chain, however, and began to scream. Thereupon the young fellow struck her over, but she still clung to her purse. The older sister was so frightened that she simply stood speechless and unable to move.

The younger girl fought with all her might and with the aid of the highwayman in her teeth. Then he struck her again and kicked her into the gutter, breaking the purse from the chain and dashed down the avenue. As the girl struggled to her feet, screaming, Deputy Commissioner Hanson sprang into Sixth avenue from Forty-third street. He was just in time to see the thief kick the purse from the chain and take the money. His long legs were immediately stretched out in pursuit, the two girls following at the best of their speed.

Finnichiro ran like a deer and drew rapidly away from the Deputy Commissioner and the police. As he approached Forty-third street, Roundman Gerber turned into the avenue from across the street and took the situation at a glance. His legs are even longer than Mr. Hanson's and he never used them to better advantage in his life. Within a stretch of half a block he was able to reach out with his hand and snatching the thief in the back of the neck.

Two vigorous fists whirled Finnichiro help into the air, and he fell to the ground. When the girls described to Gerber the strenuous method by which he had attempted to rob them, he got a few more facts and his features were sadly freckled when he was arraigned in the Yorkville Court to-day and held for trial.

VETERAN BROKERS IN BOSTON GO UNDER.

Webster F. Putnam & Co. Fail to Recover from Recent Market Slump.

BOSTON, April 6.—The failure of Webster F. Putnam and Company, bankers and brokers, of No. 50 Congress street, this city, was announced to-day on the Boston Stock Exchange.

The firm has been a member of Boston Stock Exchange since 1880, but has not ranked as one of the large broker houses of the city. The suspension was caused by the recent stock market collapse. The assignment was made to Arthur P. French of No. 50 State street, and he conveyed all individual and personal property of the firm.

Mr. French said:

"The assignment was made to protect all the interests of the creditors. There are valuable credits, both real and personal, from which substantial sums may be realized if promptly prosecuted. The failure is regarded as a small one."

GOLD OF GOLDFIELD STRIKE.

GOLDFIELD, Nev., April 6.—The mines of Goldfield will probably be running full blast within a week. The striking miners last night withdrew from the Industrial Workers of the World. They will now accede to the demands of the mine owners and the lockout will cease.

IRISH SONG AND STORY EVENING

The Gaelic Society Arranged an Attractive Programme for Annual Feis.

When to-morrow night the twenty-eighth annual Feis Ceoil agus Seanchas (literary and musical festival) of the Gaelic Society is held in Carnegie Hall, the first opportunity will be offered of hearing a new musical rendering of "God Save Ireland."

The Gaelic Society has made a departure that should be of great interest to all who are interested in Gaelic music. An old melody of Rory Dall O'Connell (about 1650) has been taken from the Patriotic collection of ancient Irish music to take the place of the partial and rather ponderous "Trump, Trump," to which the Irish national rallying song is now set. Victor Herbert, himself an Irishman, has arranged the new rendering, and has written a chorus full of the fire and heart characteristic of the fighting race.

It is realized by those who have taken the responsibility for the innovation that some may consider it unwarranted. The circumstances under which "God Save Ireland" found expression, however, have sanctified it for all loyal and patriotic Irishmen. Therefore the American marching tune to which it has been sung is regarded as entirely unsuited as a garb for a national anthem of another land.

A singularly attractive programme has been prepared for the Sunday night festival of song and story. Joseph D. Cronin will preside and deliver a short address on the "Fruits of the Irish Revival." Dr. Joseph Dunn, Ph.D., professor of Irish in the Catholic University at Washington, will speak on "The Status of Irish in American Colleges."

There will be a grand chorus of one hundred voices, with organ and harp accompaniment. The soloists are Miss Maggie McConn, the famous Australian mezzo soprano; Miss Kate A. Mullin, soprano; Miss Genevieve C. H. H. Cheshire, the noted harpist; Mr. John Cheshire, the noted harpist; Mr. Bernard O'Donnell, accompanist, and Mr. R. H. Maguire, vocal director.

Another surprise feature of the Feis will be the rendering of MacDowell's "The Death of the Fiddler," which was his inspiration for the legends comprised in the famous Cycle of the Red Branch, that wonderful group of epic which includes, among other tales, the story of the matchless Deirdre whose love was such that "the ridge of earth was there a woman so beautiful, Deirdre the wife of Naí, beloved of Conchobor, the king of Ireland, who because of his overmastering desire for her loved her treacherously to the death of her husband, Nais, and his two brothers. In this music MacDowell has recaptured the very life and spirit of the Gaelic harp, has infused "unbound the island harp."

STOCKS MIXED IN AN ACTIVE MARKET

Profit Taking Turns the Tide, and Most of the Leaders
Lost Early Gains.

Prices of stocks in the early dealings to-day moved with hesitation and within a narrow range generally either way. The Harriman Pacific made large fractional gains and Amalgamated Copper rose 1-16, Minneapolis, St. Paul & North Pacific, 1-16 and Baltimore & Ohio, St. Paul and Toledo, St. Louis & Western preferred large fractions.

There was an improvement as the session advanced, gains being the rule, while the trading quickened.

The total sales of stocks to-day were $7,900,000 and of bonds $1,341,000.

Profit taking in the final hour drove the list backward and most of the speculative favorites fell below the opening. Canadian Pacific lost 3-16, St. Paul & Northern Pacific, Reading, Pennsylvania, Union Pacific and Brooklyn Rapid Transit fractions.

Smoothing balanced the day with a gain of 1-16. With the closing of Copper, Great Northern, Missouri Pacific and Southern Pacific were slightly above. The closing was active.
